NOTES

Syria-Israel: Syria appears to be bracing for Israeli retaliatory action. According to the Syrian chief of staff, within a few days the government will arm civilian volunteers "for any eventuality." Moscow has supported Syria by delivering a note to Tel Aviv protesting what it described as an Israeli military buildup on the Syrian border. Moscow also tried to delay today's UN Security Council meeting, which was requested by Israel.

Latin America: Extremist elements may use the Havana-sponsored "week of solidarity with Vietnam" from 15 to 21 October to try to incite student violence against US installations, although previous attempts to do so have had little success.

Various Communist-controlled student federations are planning one-day student strikes throughout Latin America for 21 October, according to student spokesmen in Santo Domingo.]

*The Netherlands: The fall of Prime Minister Cals' government today reflects dissatisfaction in both business and labor groups with economic stabilization policies. Political leaders now are likely to seek parliamentary elections prior to the scheduled date of May 1967 although a caretaker government under conservative ex-prime minister De Quay has been considered a possible alternative. Any new government is expected to continue present Dutch policies.
